A FINE TRIBUTE.

The Mid-Continent, edited by Rev. Sam' I. Bell. D. D., it seems has known one of our prominent citizens long and favorably. We nent the following very flatteringly and euogistic but well deserved editorial notice:

We see by the Wichitz Eagle that an old acquaintance, a friend, playmate and school mate of our own sons has been keeping his fortieth anniversary in that prosperous city. Maurice W. Levy attended the College of California when a lad, and his free was very carriller to us in those days. He was very California when a lad, and his free was very tamilier to us in those days. He was even then a son of whom his playarts might well is proud, with his manly, quiet, but at the same time strong form and face. An inkling of his success could be seen in his annest manner, and for a boy, calm thoughtfulness. What changes since then. The president of time college, Dr. Henry Durant, and many of the prefessors are cone—the boys and crist faul.

codege, Dr. Henry Durant, and many of the professors are gone—the boys and girls that alled the parsonage where young Levy was often a guest are widely separated, one in a foreign land, two of the well beleved ones have gone before to their Father's house above. Others have homes on the Pacific slope and on the shores of the Atlantic. But they well remember their old friend and companion, Maurice W. Levy, and wish heartily for him a continuation of every prosperity. May his life be filled with good in the future as in the past, and his charities increase with his prosperities. Wichita seems to hold many good and strong men. No wonder that the city prospers almost beyond belief.

KATIE PUTNAM.

This indy begins a three nights' engagement at the opera house, on Monday evening in Lena, the Madeap, concerning which the Louisvill Contier-Journal says:

Miss Kutie Putnam played again last night before the largest audience which has assent blod here this senson. If we may except the first act, which is in the nature of a prologue to what followed, the play throughout was one of deep interest, and was well sustained by the entire company. Miss Putnam, in the character of Lenn added new laurels to her nirendy well established fame as an actres in this city. Flaws maybe often are picked in the playing of the roost finished artists, but the merits of an actor or an actresa is by inthe hearts of the public, who satisfies its deiclem or not. This inculty Miss Futnam posto an extent that entitles her to rank among is entitled to unstinted praise."
